For the KENO JavaFX project, both of us had discussed the workflow and coding aspect over discord, as well as in person, and worked together for all the parts of the program. We brainstormed ideas and solutions together over discord, in order to fix the issues and missing units in our code. Kevin majorly focused towards the logical aspect of the project as well as the efficiency of the program including the setting up of grid, dealing and managing user's input, etc. , and I worked more on the looks, fonts, Event handling, and the general GUI of the program, along with changing/debugging the code. Overall, both of us communicated well despite the short span of time we had, along with differing schedules and midterm exams, and it worked out efficiently.
